MANILA IS BOMBED SECOND STRAIGHT DAY

Allies Shell Arnhem In Attempt To Reach Trapped British

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie

(Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie)
DEVELOPMENTS of the next few days may give us a pretty good idea of when V-day will come in Europe.

Unofficial reports, from Quebec and the front itself, say that the Allied drive is still ahead of schedule. The last official word said five days. The latest report is a month, which can be considered from two angles.

It is hardly likely that we have gained any on the actual ground-taking schedule in the last few weeks of increasing German resistance. We could be in better position for the final battle, both as to organization of supplies and reserves, than was expected a month ago.

The conservative appraisal is that France was reconquered somewhat earlier and at smaller cost than expected, so that now we enter the battle of Germany in better shape generally. From here on out, there are many unponderables.

A breakthrough at Arnhem in the next few days, which is not too much to expect, could result in the crumbling of the whole German line. Allied officers express doubt as to the value of German defenses along the Dutch border, believing the Nazis rely strongly on the flooded Dutch lowlands. But it is too much to hope that the Germans are entirely dependent on water defenses which proved no real barrier to them in 1940. They undoubtedly have done everything possible to prepare defenses in depth deep into Germany.

So the big factor is the German armor—whether it is now offering, with its last strength, a tough but thin crust backed with little filling, or whether the Allies must penetrate miles and miles of defenses as strongly defended as we have found the outposts.

Bad weather already has come to the channel across which reserves and supplies must move. Patton's tanks have run into heavy rains, which, together with fog in Holland, have interfered with the air arm. Another fortnight will see increasingly bad weather as a regular thing. October would be the month in which to win the war. Nov. 15 would be the outside limit unless the Allies were willing to risk some very serious delays.

All of which gives the idea that the fall of Arnhem will see Eisenhower turn loose his Sunday punch.

Describe Position Of Airborn Forces Today As Critical

BULLETIN

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Sept. 22.—The position of the British airborne pocket at Arnhem in Holland was described officially tonight as critical, unless Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second Army can break through the last six miles barring a junction.

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Sept. 22.—British Tommies joined by American paratroopers hurled shells into the Arnhem area today and drove close to where airborne forces were reported holding open a bridge across the last branch of the Rhine.

An Allied end run around the Siegfried line into the war works of the Ruhr valley was in prospect.

Air reconnaissance reports Arnhem was aflame and the Germans were pulling back to the east suggested that the way was opening for an early link-up with the fiercely beset island of airborne forces who had held their isolated position since Sunday.

Officially, it was announced that the Allies had driven two miles north of Nijmegen after seizing the long bridge across the main Rhine branch, the Waal, and were within six miles of Arnhem.

But dispatches from the Arnhem sector said British guns already were shooting into German positions from which the units of the first Allied airborne army had been attacked.

These reports indicated the Allies were steadily gaining in a slugging advance, comparable to the battle going on at the opposite end of the 500-mile front where the Third Army was fighting it out with the greatest German armored force assembled since Normandy.

The Germans were guessing frantically as to the state of affairs at Arnhem where the Allied invasion flood threatened to burst the last dyke of defenses before the Reich.

Repulsed, Germans Say
The German communiqué said the Allied push from Nijmegen had been halted, and that an all-out attack had been launched with the aim of annihilating the isolated remnants at Arnhem. The Germans said yesterday the division had largely been wiped out.

Another German broadcast said the push from the south already had linked up with the Arnhem force. A third said the Arnhem force already had been liquidated. Again it was declared the fierce fight was continuing and German forces everywhere in Holland had gone over to the counter-attack.

Allied dispatches saying the airborne force still held the Arnhem bridge was inconclusive, as they were dated two days ago.

(Against this the BBC quoted a front reporter today as saying the Germans still held the bridge, but British troops had established a bridgehead on the north side and had the span itself under fire. The Germans were attempting to flee north over the bridge, said this broadcast recorded by CBS.)

Meanwhile, the British shoved out on both sides of Eindhoven, to their rear, and broadened to 25 miles the base of their 45-mile deep corridor across Holland through which

MOST NEWSPAPERS SUPPORT DEWEY

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade journal, said today Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has the editorial support of 317 daily newspapers with a combined circulation of 21,439,768 out of 1,067 which replied to a questionnaire it sent to all of the daily newspapers in the nation. Favorable reaction of President Roosevelt were 220 newspapers with a combined circulation of 4,676,510, he magazine said.

Newspapers backing Dewey for election, the magazine stated, represent 63.7 per cent of the total circulation of the nation's 1,754 dailies which have a combined circulation of 44,392,829. Newspapers responding to the survey represent a total circulation of 33,662,430.

He is survived by his wife, Pearl, twin children, Jack William and Jill Ann, at the home, one sister, Mrs. Franklin Bush of Cincinnati.

The body is at the family residence on N. Market st., where funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in charge of Rev. J. Merriam Cox of the Presbyterian church. Burial will be in mausoleum in the Edison cemetery.

Friends may call at the home Friday evening and Saturday morning.

Captured Bridge Is Key To Drive From Holland

This is the vital Waal Rhine bridge—a mile and a half long, 600 feet high—at Nijmegen, Holland, which was captured intact by British tanks and Allied airborne forces, to enable reinforcements to roll across and relieve beleaguered airborne troops pocketed near Arnhem, eight miles north. It is the only bridge in the area, and was held stubbornly until assault troops crossed some distance away and launched a rear attack which sent the Germans scurrying.

ACQUITTED IN FARM DEATHS

Mercer Slaying Still Unsolved As Janice Graham Is Freed

(By Associated Press)

BERKELEY, Pa., Sept. 22.—Tall, blonde Janice Graham, former maid on the Everett Wilson dairy farm here, today was acquitted of three charges of murder in connection with the shotgun slayings of two persons and the strangling of a third on the farm near this quiet western Pennsylvania community.

Miss Graham was tried in connection with the shotgun deaths of Mrs. Catherine Wilson, 76, and Robert McKay, 70, and the strangling of Mrs. Helen Wilson, wife of her employer, last Oct. 7.

Miss Graham was the second person to be acquitted of these murder charges. The other, her ex-sweetheart, William Morell, was freed of them last December but he was convicted on a voluntary manslaughter count in the death of Mrs. Helen Wilson.

At Miss Graham's trial, she took the witness stand and placed responsibility for the killings on Morell, a strapping 21-year-old farm hand also employed at the farm. She claimed she had been bound and gagged and then forced by him to go to Ohio where they were arrested a day after the bodies were discovered.

Morell, the state's star witness, claimed he was herding cattle at the time of the slayings and that when he returned to the Wilson home he found Miss Graham standing on the porch, and the bodies lying inside.

Hint Federal Mediation In Pottery Wage Dispute

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 22.—Although the situation was reported unchanged, a federal mediation move was hinted here today as an aftermath of the collapse of the biennial wage conference between the United States Pottery's association and the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Brotherhood officials, who remained in Cleveland 24 hours after employer representatives withdrew from the wage parley in a dispute over union demands for time and a half for employment in excess of eight hours a day, continued their sessions here.

500 Turn Out At Columbiana To Hear Stewart Give Talk

Republican Candidate For Governor Hits "Ruthless Spending" of New Deal, Urges People's Support of Dewey and Bricker

COLUMBIANA, Sept. 22.—Calling upon the people of Ohio "to do their part in saving these United States of America by delivering the state's 23 electoral votes to Tom Dewey and Ohio Bricker, James Garfield Stewart, Ohio's Republican gubernatorial candidate, spoke last night to approximately 500 people gathered in the High school auditorium for an old time GOP campaign rally.

Playing what he termed the "ruthless and misdirected spending" of the Roosevelt administration, the Cincinnati mayor also threw stinging criticisms at the Democratic party's state platform adopted in Columbus 11 days ago.

Claiming the Democrats were "either out all night or had just awakened after a six year's sleep" when they wrote their present platform, Stewart pointed out several measures advocated in the program which had been carried out to complete success by the Bricker administration as long as five years ago.

Offers State Program

As an example, the speaker gave the history of the public school.

Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati, Republican candidate for governor who spoke in Columbiana last night will visit Salem for his first stop in another tour of the county on Oct. 19.

The gubernatorial candidate will be accompanied by a caravan of other Republican state and county candidates.

The new book, good today, allows each motorist the same basic gas ration for the three-month period, but the fuel is allowed on fewer coupons.

With six coupons for each period valued at four gallons a ticket, the new books allow the same amount of gasoline as the old "A" books, which had eight coupons valued at three gallons each.

Ration board officials said that the new period starting today will last until Dec. 22, as far as they know now. Of course, should circumstances change, they say, alterations in the value of your "A" book may be expected.

Under present arrangement the "A" book is set up for a year's time. Thirty coupons, or four periods of three months each are contained in the book.

HAPPINESS FORMULA GIVEN BY MINISTER

Dr. James A. Scott, Methodist pastor, speaking at a meeting of Kiwanis club Thursday noon in the Memorial building, outlined four ways to find happiness in his talk on "Secrets of Happiness."

He urged "keep motives pure, develop the ability to reconcile happiness and trouble, recognize our own limitations and enjoy the common tasks of life."

Harold Smith, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

The Salem and Columbiana Kiwanis club will hold an inter-city chicken and clambake at the Memorial at 6:15 p. m. Thursday.

William Pfaff, program chairman and Vice President Harold Smith are in charge.

Japs Lose 205 Planes and 37 Ships, Report

(By The Associated Press)

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Sept. 22.—America's war might was carried back to Manila Thursday (Manila time). Hundreds of carrier planes shot down 110 Japanese aircraft, wiped out 95 on the ground and sank or probably sank 37 ships, including two destroyers, while a huge U. S. fleet stood unchallenged off the Philippines.

(Tokyo and Manila radios reported 200 carrier planes returned today, carrying the strike into its second day. Broadcasters said they struck in four waves at "harbor facilities and also the airfield", presumably the same targets hit yesterday.)

This first massive blow at Manila since the fall of Corregidor in May, 1942, wrecking destruction at Clark field, Nichols field, the Cavite naval base, Subic and Manila bays, had swift repercussions. The jittery enemy put all the Philippines under martial law.

The cost of the raid to the United States was 15 planes, but several of their armament were saved. Not one of the aircraft carriers and escorting warships was even damaged in the spectacular operations executed by Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr., and Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher.

Eccentrically in a special communique, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced "this superbly successful attack apparently caught the enemy completely by surprise."

Eleven enemy ships definitely were sunk—a large destroyer leader, four large oil tankers, a whale tanker, two large cargo ships, a medium cargo ship and two small cargo ships.

Twenty-six probably were sunk—a destroyer, two large whale tankers, a large transport, 10 large cargo ships, and 12 medium cargo ships. A floating drydock also probably was sunk.

Attack In Three Waves

The Mitscher-Halsey armada which since Aug. 30 has accounted for 258 Japanese ships and 909 planes, the bulk of them in the Philippines area, struck ahead of invasion forces gathering in advanced bases south and east of Mindanao.

Tokyo radio said 150 carrier planes attacked in three waves in the Manila sector in the morning and 290 in the afternoon. It claimed 24 were downed. Tokyo announced that the puppet president, Jose P. Laurel, declared martial law through out the Philippines, effective the day of the raid.

The dispatch of such a huge fleet toward the Philippines reflected confidence in the outcome of the invasion of the Palaus, 515 miles east of Mindanao, where Marines are locked with ridge-entrenched Japanese in one of the most savage engagements of the Pacific war.

Nimitz, in a communique preceding the special one on the Manila raid, said the Leathernecks on

Relief for Encircled Troops

Four More Years of Frustration

The campaign for the presidency of the United States is not a popularity contest, but an attempt to decide on a government. Gov. Dewey's blunt statements Tuesday night at Portland on the theme of the "indispensable man" are the most realistic to come out of the presidential campaign so far. Gov. Dewey asks what the country could expect of a national administration divided within itself if it were reelected a fourth time, with a Republican majority in congress.

Here is one of the oddities of the political situation in 1944. Mr. Roosevelt's political popularity always has been greater than that of his party or his policies. He has been able to command personal support where he had no claim on party support and could not depend on support for his ideas.

The result during his three terms in office has been steady deterioration of the quality of his government. In a fourth term, the deterioration would continue still farther. Indeed, it would be a political miracle if a fourth term did not result in a hopeless deadlock between Mr. Roosevelt and his own party in congress, to say nothing of the opposition party, which is expected to have a majority in the house of representatives. A fourth term might amount to paralysis of government.

Gov. Dewey's best talking point in the campaign is the generally inferior quality of Mr. Roosevelt's administration as against the obvious improvements that would follow a change of administration. The people's responsibility in this year's election is selection of a government, not an individual. In the wildest hopes of the most wishful radicals preaching "Roosevelt or ruin," a fourth term could not possibly result in anything but four years of frustration for a man who lost control of his party and scuttled the confidence of congress by overt attempts to belittle its function.

Sore Spots

Gov. Dewey's radio campaign technique, while somewhat less sensational than many listeners had expected it would be, is having effect on the opposition.

New Deal apologists are busy 24 hours a day issuing rebuttals, denials and counter-charges. It took Sidney Hillman an hour the day after the governor's address on labor to explain what he thought was wrong with it. Mr. Ickes has been busy. As the sore spots in the Roosevelt administration get probed and jabbed increasingly, there is certain to be a great clamor of indignant denial from minor spokesmen.

The immediately obvious thing is, of course, that the minor spokesmen are not satisfactory. The fourth term candidate, himself, is the only one who can speak with authority on his indispensability. Sen. Truman tried it and hasn't been heard from since Mr. Hillman and Mr. Ickes merely make votes for Gov. Dewey. It was never more clearly evident that the fourth term if it can be put over will not be the result of the people's support for the New Deal's underlings. As the scientific pollsters discovered long ago, a large majority of citizens who like Mr. Roosevelt personally do not like his political companions or their ideas.

Gov. Dewey's task in the campaign is to draw the issue distinctly between types of government. His type is characterized by efficiency and equitable treatment of all citizens under the law. Mr. Roosevelt's type, after 11 years, is characterized by improvisation and special favor alternating with special prejudice. Voters next November will be given a choice, not between men but between principles of administration held by men. Gov. Dewey is doing a good job so far of going to work on the principles of the Roosevelt type of government. With another full week in September before going into the home stretch in October, he should be able to put his finger on all the sore spots there are before election day.

Finland's Eye to the Future

The Russian armistice terms for Finland are hard. Some will say they are too hard to be endured. That remains to be seen.

Before handing down summary judgment against Russia, it is well to remember that Finland's leaning toward Germany has been a Russian security problem continuously for 25 years. In the power spheres that existed before the war, Germany claimed Finland. Obviously, in the power spheres that will exist after the war Russia will claim Finland. The question of peace, as far as Finland is concerned, must be worked out in the light of that fact and in the light of Finland's own geographic position.

Finland's eye to the future is unavoidably jaundiced; the little nation has been through a trying ordeal. But certainly the jaundice should not be only at the expense of Soviet Russia. The Finns, having had much experience with the Germans, must know that if the situation now was reversed and they were receiving armistice terms from Germany after fighting on the side of Russia, they could not expect lenient terms.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, September 23

THE ASTRAL configurations for this day must be read as most conflicting and contradictory. There may be all sorts of sudden, peculiar and intriguing adventures and experiences, with certain contacts of a public, community, or fraternal relationship, assuming major importance and giving a cherished opportunity for bewildering place and power. However, the way may be beset with danger, difficulty and treachery, unless particular caution, shrewdness, and attention to word, speech and legal matters be managed with prudence, reflection and sound judgment. Shun extravagance of funds and energies.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year of unusual intriguing or strange situations, in which much is to be gained or lost according to the astuteness, soundness, saneness and self restraints mustered in making decisions, or coming to conclusions. Under a bewildering state of mind and emotions there is room for failure through confusions and because of sinister snares, illusions, intrigues or duplicity. Excesses, extravagances and careless involvements through words, writings, agreements or emotions should be submitted to sound and sensible judgment. This also in personal affairs.

A child born on this day may be blessed with unusual talents, of an intuitive or subjective quality, making it an easy prey to sharpers or schemers. It may suffer financial loss through careless speech, or litigation.

Return of the Vanished American

By James Thrasher

One of these days the doorbell will ring and there once again, like the first robin of spring, will be the Vanished American. You remember, the cheery and persistent citizen with the sample case of brushes or hosiery, or perhaps a mechanized carpet sweeper. We won't say when that day will come, for fear of being called complacent. But come it will. And a typical chapter in American life will be resumed.

Plans must be shaping up already. For it would be a great mistake to think that reconversion will begin and end at the factory. Even now the general staff of door-to-door salesmanship probably has the maps spread out and is pondering new strategies and tactics for the day when the all-out campaign of persuasion moves forward again into every street and countryside.

Canny consumers would do well, then, to reconvert their thinking into peacetime channels. Otherwise they may run into some early pitfalls. The first one probably will be the false aura of cordiality that is bound to pervade the resumption of front-stoop merchandising.

The Vanished American, returning to his appointed rounds, will certainly be welcomed as the Americans were welcomed in Paris. Maybe his wares won't be dreams of streamlined transparent plastic. But to the housewife, down to the last bristle of the vegetable brush and reduced to wielding a broom, they will look like the dawn of a brave new world.

This won't last, of course. The encyclopedia vendor will follow the Fuller Brush man. The vacuum cleaner salesman will be succeeded by the boy who is working his father's way through high school by means of magazine subscriptions. The big parade will be on.

So if she is forward looking, the housewife even now will be brushing up on her sales resistance. She might practice up on that old Scandinavian housemaid impersonation she used to use when the salesman asked, "Are you the lady of the house?" That always eased the shame of falsehood with a touch of light-hearted drama. She might give some thought to her neglected footwork, for it takes speed to beat the salesman's toe to that strategic territory between the door and the jamb.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Home Medicine Remedies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THERE ARE half a dozen conditions that the average citizen, including Mrs. Average Citizen, feel that they are competent to treat by tried and true household medicine remedies, without even consulting the doctor.

Dr. Clendinging will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The first is putting iodine or mercurchrome on cuts or skin injuries and strapping them over with sterile gauze. I think Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen are right about this and it is a sign of progress that they have learned how to do it with good technique.

Second, most skin eruptions treated with salve—zinc oxide ointment, or, if on the foot, whether athlete or not, Whitfield's ointment. I would score Mr. and Mrs. A. C. about 60 per cent on this. They probably do as much good in the 60 per cent of cases as the professional dermatologist.

Home Use of Cathartics

Third, cathartics. This is the poor man's medical specialty. No darn doctor can tell him when he needs salts or senna. I wouldn't score him very high on this. He does a lot of harm, creates a habit and indigestion, and never knows enough to lay off when there is acute pain in the abdomen.

Fourth, colds. Aspirin, quinine, hartshorn liniment. Well, he can have that, so far as I am concerned. "Never call a doctor for a cold," is just as good a motto as "God bless our home."

Fifth, sleeping medicines. Since these cannot be obtained except on a prescription from a physician in most states, the practice has slowed up, but not much. I don't think it does much harm.

Sixth, something for the nerves, and this is a very curious situation. The medicine usually employed to "soothe myself down with" is some form of bromide. And it does a great deal of harm, partly because it is easy to obtain, partly because large doses can be taken without any obvious immediate effect, and partly because bromide intoxication is not very often recognized even by members of the medical profession.

Bromides Harmful

Bromides are salts of bromide—sodium, potassium, strontium. Their pharmacological action is as a sedative on the cortex of the brain, particularly the motor area. They were once the standby and are still used extensively for epilepsy. But by quieting motor muscle restlessness they quiet the nerves all over and induce sleep. So they are the main ingredients of all kinds of medicines used for nerves and hives, and it is very easy for a nervous person to get the habit of taking them without knowing what they contain and without knowing that they accumulate in the body and cause true intoxication.

All doctors know that when full bromide dosage occurs there is a nasty looking pustular eruption on the skin. But not all know that before the stage of eruption appears a state of mental confusion, diminished power of concentration, unsteady gait, even hallucinations and delirium may occur from regular bromide dosage. In one year in a small hospital 20 of these cases were brought in.

Fortunately the treatment is very simple and effective. It consists in giving plenty of ordinary table salt—sodium chloride. The bromides replace the chloride atom in the body tissues, become fixed there and are eliminated only very slowly. But the chlorides, if administered in good quantity, drive out the bromides.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

MILITARY TRAINING

Editor, The News:

The pressure is on. Those who wish the United States to become a great military power after World War II are telling us they plan, thereby, to keep the peace. Compulsory military training for all boys (and why not girls, too?) of the future is the natural and necessary accompaniment to their plans.

What do you people think about militarism as the way to plan for peace? Are you willing to abandon the America your forefathers established for one patterned after the Europe they were glad to leave behind? What's wrong with our America except that we have been unable to help the world stage from being set for war, economically and politically as well as psychologically?

Again, as in 1918, we hold the balance. But how can we plan with any sincerity and faith for a co-operative world, while at the same time we propose to build up the greatest military strength the world will ever have seen? The latter course is by far the easier. But history proves that it is ultimately fatal to arm and goosestep your people rather than to teach them to appreciate their freedom and to sacrifice a bit of it for constructive encouragement to the less free, the less prosperous, the less educated wherever they happen to live. We must choose to do without the things that lead to war.

Perhaps the proposal for compulsory military training hasn't alarmed you, yet. To me, it appears like a complete reversal of our American ideology, a negative solution to the problem of peace. It appears as if we are scrapping our faith in a better world, instead of strengthening it. This ever-changing world of ours presents, now, the most fertile opportunity for sowing seeds of honest economic and political cooperation that it has ever had. Is the United States getting old and fearful, scared of a future that is ours to make? Let's think in terms of a positive solution to the problem of peace.

Your Senators Taft and Burton and your Representative Earl Lewis in congress should be eager to hear from you on this question. You must decide what kind of future America you want through them. They are your representatives, not your masters. Congressman Earl Lewis assured me last spring that his mind was still open on the question of compulsory military training. If you care, write them soon.

Variety of Latest Developments

STATE REVENUES suffer from the cigarette shortage. Georgia complains that since smokes became hard to buy a deluge of cigarettes have come in by mail without paying the local tax. Revenue Commissioner Cook places the cumulative loss to the state at $500,000. Ohio's Tax Department reports collected its 2-cent levy on 3,500,000 fewer packs of cigarettes in August, this year, than in the same month last year.

U. S. AIRLINES are due to get another 26 planes back from the Army soon. The War Department, however, hasn't decided yet which domestic carriers will share in the equipment windfall.

VEGETABLE PRODUCTION this year promises to be the biggest on record.

The combined winter-spring-summer commercial crops, along with winter wheat, are up to an 11 per cent gain over the previous peak of 7 million tons set in 1942. Vegetable growers are expected to top last year's output by 18 per cent and after the 1933-42 average by 22 per cent.

VACATIONING WORKERS in under-manned hosiery mills cut production more than usual this summer. July output (10 million dozen pairs) set a four-year low. Philosophical manufacturers explained their relative unconcern at the vacation decline: "We can't get enough material to keep up with demand anyway."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT signed a bill increasing the special delivery mail rate to 13 cents, effective Nov. 1, decreasing postal insurance rates and retaining present collect-on-delivery postal charges.

POLAND PROPOSED that the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration take the parts off the Germans to clothe the liberated peoples of Europe if the Nazis threatened scorched earth policy destroys the Polish textile factories. The resolution, which also proposed that the Germans be forced to give up their coal if they can other nations' mines, was introduced at a secret plenary session of the U. N. R. R. A. council in Montreal.

CIVILIAN GOODS: Items, such as electric refrigerators, washing machines and vacuum cleaners, will be back in production soon, the W.P.B. indicated yesterday.

Glass Demand Seen
STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Pennsylvania will lead the nation in post-war expansion of glass production, according to Dr. William M. Myers of Pennsylvania State College, who says that glass has one of the most promising futures of any material in existence. "Because this state has the world's best glass sand, plus a supply of natural gas, which is the best fuel for the glass-making process, production will undoubtedly be in Pennsylvania," he explained.

In French Purge

The French Naval Ministry has issued warrants for the arrest of the four French admirals pictured above, in a purge of collaborationists. Top, left, Rear Adm. Takes It All Back

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—In municipal court here recently a patrolman appeared in behalf of a man he had arrested for speeding and declared that he believed the charge was an error. The policeman said he found that his watch was out of order soon after he had checked the defendant's speed at 44 miles an hour. The case was dismissed.

Bar Serves Up Poison

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Police here are looking for a new kind of bar—one that's reported to be serving denatured alcohol. Eight bleary-eyed drinkers arrested in the city started the hunt, but they were either unable or unwilling to remember the location of the bar.

A technicolor production, "Gypsy Wildcat," featuring Maria Montez and Jon Hall, is the attraction at the State tonight and Saturday. The cast includes Peter Coe, Nigel Bruce, Leo Carrillo, Gale Sondergaard, Douglass Dumbrille and Curt Bois.

The romance of a gypsy girl and her nobleman sweetheart is told in the story of a tribe of gypsies who are held hostage by a powerful overlord to force them to produce the murderer of one of his men. The efforts of the girl and her lover to free her people and rid their land of a tyrant are beautifully produced in technicolor. Traditional gypsy music and dances are woven into the story.

At the Grand tonight and Saturday are: "The Laramie Trail," with Bob Livingston, Smiley Burnette and George Lewis; and "Waterfront," featuring John Carradine, J. Carroll Nash, Maris Waxman and Edwin Maxwell.

Fratila-Leaf Wedding Is Thursday Event

Miss Irene Fratila, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fratila, Sr., of 931 Newgarden st., became the bride of Sheldon Leaf, son of Mrs. Charles Leaf of Newton Falls, formerly of Salem, in a quiet ceremony at the home of her parents at 10 a. m. Thursday.

Louis J. Raymond performed the double ring ceremony at which Mr. and Mrs. John Winberry, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, were attendants.

Mrs. Leaf wore a pink wool jersey street frock with brown accessories and orchid corsage. Her sister was in black and yellow velvet with corsage of gladioli and roses.

Mrs. Fratila, mother of the bride, wore a green velvet dress and corsage of roses and gladioli and Mrs. Leaf, mother of the groom, wore a black street dress with matching accessories and had a corsage of roses.

A buffet luncheon was served after the ceremony at a table arranged with mixed flower centerpieces.

After a short trip, the couple will make their home with her parents. The bride, a graduate of Salem High school in 1943, is employed in the ration board office. Mr. Leaf, who attended Salem High school, has been employed at the Ravenscroft arsenal.

Church Gifts Made At Bethlehem Meeting

A program marked by the presentation of two gifts to the Bethlehem class was held by the group yesterday in the Methodist church rooms, with 23 members and five guests attending.

A desk given as a memorial to his mother, Mrs. Anna A. Peters, was presented to the class by Alty W. E. Peters. Mrs. Eva Nettour introduced Alty Peters whose gift was accepted for the class by Mrs. A. C. Frethy.

Mrs. Goldie Swaney presented the members with a Bible which had belonged to her mother, Mrs. Josephine B. Murdoch. She was introduced by Mrs. Harry Reitzel. The response was given by Mrs. D. R. McConnell.

Devotional service and group singing were led by Mrs. R. A. Ohl with accompaniment by Mrs. W. Tolerton.

Rev. J. A. Scott gave a short talk, closing with prayer.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Lida Broomall, Mrs. Elizabeth Kirkbride and Mrs. Mary Kirkbride during the social hour which featured group singing and contests in charge of Mrs. Swaney.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 19 at the church.

New Members Welcomed By Mullins Boosters

Miss June Chappell and Miss Mary Weiland were welcomed as new members of the Mullins Boosters club at a dinner last night at the Coffee Cup.

Mrs. Richard T. Beecher, president, was in charge of the business session. Tables were attractively decorated with yellow pompons and lighted by white candles. Favors were miniature footballs bearing the club's name and decorations were in red and black.

The special prize for the evening was awarded to Miss Henrietta Tucker and prizes in "Gossip" went to Mrs. Beecher and Miss Frieda Ratscher.

The committee in charge included Mrs. Gus Herman, Miss Lois Field, Mrs. John Heit, Miss Helen Kenty.

The group's next meeting will be replaced by a joint party for all office girls' organizations in the city.

bombard and strafed residential quarters of Manila.

"Fires broke out from the Binondo church as well as the homes of Filipinos and Chinese as a result of the enemy's bombing," the broadcast said. "Slight damage was sustained by the Japanese embassy."

The Japanese, who sent their bombers against Manila in 1942 after it had been declared an open city, employed such words as "brutal" and "indiscriminate" today in a propaganda broadcast describing yesterday's American air attack on military objectives there.

Jap Version of Attacks

A dispatch by the Japanese news agency Domei, broadcast by Tokyo and recorded by The Associated Press, was headed "anger" and began:

"All Manila was raging today—raging with hatred against the Americans for the brutality and viciousness displayed in indiscriminate attacks on Manila yesterday."

The first Tokyo reports, acknowledging two separate air attacks on the "Manila sector"—one in the morning and one in the afternoon—asserted 24 planes were shot down out of an attacking force of 150 planes in the morning but made no claims concerning the later raid, said to have been executed by 290 aircraft. The U. S. communiqué said 15 planes were lost.

Tokyo described damage to Japanese installations as negligible but declared there were more than 100 casualties among "the innocent civilian population."

"In keeping with their inhuman, indiscriminate nature the American pilots brutally strafed the Chinese general hospital," the Domei broadcast said. "The hospital bore the Red Cross mark on the roof. Since the attack was carried out during the day when visibility was clear the vicious intention of the enemy was very evident."

NO 'DOG-EAT-DOG' ECONOMY - DEWEY

(By Associated Press)
ENROUTE TO LOS ANGELES WITH DEWEY, Sept. 22—Pounding his way on the theme that the nation needs regulation without regimentation, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey rephrased a speech on social security problems as he traveled toward Los Angeles today for his fourth west coast campaign address tonight.
The Republican presidential nominee scheduled meetings with aircraft and motion picture leaders, the first he has talked with during this campaign, before he goes on the air at 8 p. m. Pacific War time (NBC) in an appearance at Memorial coliseum.
At San Francisco last night he gave the definite impression that he already has gone farther in this campaign toward accepting more of the New Deal innovations in government than any other GOP presidential candidate in recent years.
Previously he had endorsed the National Labor Relations act, unemployment insurance, old age pensions, price control during wartime and last night he told a huge audience at San Francisco's civic auditorium that the days of "dog-eat-dog" national economy "are never coming back again." This brought loud applause.
But he insisted, as he has time and again, that the New Deal has rumbled the ball, piled experiment on experiment and has reached out for unnecessary power.
That was expected to be the core of his plea for a broadened social security program in tonight's speech.
In his opening talk in Philadelphia he said that "this administration is convinced that we can achieve social security only by surrendering a little bit of freedom for every little bit of security. I believe, I know, that we can achieve real social security only if we do keep our freedom."

Firing Squad Kills Rome Police Chief

ROME, Sept. 22—Pietro Caruso, chief of police while the Germans occupied Rome, was executed today for turning over hostages to the Nazis and for other acts of collaboration.
A firing squad at Fort Bravetta carried out the sentence imposed last night by an Italian court.
Caruso was sentenced to die in the first war criminal trial to be held in Italy. Specifically, the Nazi collaborationist was condemned for delivering 50 hostages for execution in caves near Rome.

Alliance Airman Freed
ALLIANCE, Sept. 22—Mr. and Mrs. George Clatterbuck learned today that their son, Staff Sgt. Drexel W. Clatterbuck who was taken prisoner when he parachuted from his plane over Picesti, May 31, was among the more than 1,000 Americans released after the capitulation of Romania.
Sgt. Clatterbuck, who entered the service in November, 1942, is now in Italy.

a one-way flow of men and armor was streaming toward the river crossing nearest Berlin.
Semtzen, 10 miles east of Eindhoven, and Winteler, six miles westward, were reached, and the West crossing was made secure by wiping out in Nijmegen itself a pocket of Germans which advance elements had not bothered with.

Hit Other U-Boat Nests
Lt. Gen. Herman B. Ramcke, who commanded the Brest garrison, was flown to England as a prisoner of war. The Germans announced the beginning of attacks on St. Nazaire, another U-boat nest in Brittany.

The battle at the southern end of the front was a crescendo of destruction for German armored forces. The Germans had lost at least 105 tanks in the woods, plains and hills east of Nancy alone—approximately half their available force in that area—and 130 in three days along the whole Rhine front.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's troops had battered their way to within six miles of Metz, had cleared the Nazis from Lunville, 25 miles southeast of Nancy, and won high ground along the Meurthe 10 miles farther southeast near Flim in a closing action on Baccarat, 40 miles from the Strasburg crossing of the Rhine.

The Third army battled across the Seille river somewhere in the Chateau-Salins-Moyenvic-Dieuze area, 18 to 28 miles north-east of Nancy, but was thrown back. The Germans announced American troops had broken into the fortress town of Remiremont, 90 miles southeast of Nancy, but were dislodged after a hard fight. This is in a sector linking the Third and Seventh armies.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army also was forced back a mile or two from Verdunians to Grand Bois.

But these were the only sectors where the Allies yielded a foot in the face of fanatical resistance.
Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army was blocked temporarily from exploiting its penetration of the Siegfried line, but was slowly widening its wedge in the German defense system north and south of Aachen.

These veterans drove within three miles of Gellenkirchen, five miles inside Germany at a point 12 miles north of Aachen, mopped up in the forests at the base of their wedge south of Aachen and were blasting out the last Nazi-held houses in industrial Stolberg east of Aachen.

Other forces which had bypassed Stolberg were about 28 miles from Cologne on the Rhine, but apparently had been pinned down there in heavy engagements.

About 1,700 more Germans were captured in the mop-up of the last Nazi pocket between Antwerp and Terneuzen.

FIRESTONE FARMS' MANAGER RESIGNS

EAST FAIRFIELD, Sept. 22—H. L. Chadwick, manager of the Firestone Farms for the past 21 years, has resigned his position to operate a 350-acre farm which he recently purchased near Mantua.

He expects to move his family to their new home some time this fall. G. M. Knuth of Louisiana has been selected as the new manager and is on the job.

WPB Lists Articles For New Production

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—The War Production board has taken steps designed to insure that industries making goods most important to the civilian economy are among the first to reconvert after Germany's fall.

Hiland G. Batcheller, operations vice chairman, has asked the WPB industry divisions to present by Saturday lists of those plants which should "be cleared of war work as soon after x-day as possible."

Batcheller's memorandum was not made public, but WPB officials explained it is intended to see that such companies are not tied up with war contracts and thus prevented from taking advantage of the sweeping removal of controls planned to come immediately on the end of the European war.

WPB will use the plant-by-plant lists in recommending to the War and Navy departments where war contract cancellations should be made. The products for which lists are sought for:

Automobiles, telephones, typewriters, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, water heaters, street cars, air conditioning equipment, electric fans, electric ranges, buses, laundry machinery, office machinery, oil burners, light trucks, mining machinery, radios, railroad passenger cars, refrigerators, sewing machines, coal stokers, commercial cooking equipment and commercial refrigerators.

cost so dearly in Ohio's precious top soil.

He also advocated the use of the state's $90,000,000 surplus in an extended highway improvement program. As soon as restrictions on material and manpower are lifted, he proposes modernization of obsolete sections of truck-line, cooperation with municipalities in the improvement of arterial state highways into and through cities and towns and expansion and further improvement of rural and farm-to-market roads.

He stressed the imperative need in Ohio of a more unified and expanded treatment of the mentally ill, proposing to establish out-patient clinics throughout the state so that treatment can be given without committing patients to state institutions.

Would Revise Labor Laws
He reaffirmed the right of workers to organize and to bargain collectively through their own representatives, without interference, and pledged revision of laws affecting labor in order that Ohio may keep pace with changing needs.

In closing, Stewart said Ohio's place in this national election is similar to that in 1863, when President Abraham Lincoln followed the election here with intense interest and wired Columbus that "Ohio had saved the Union" by upholding the interests of our established and cherished form of government.

Preceding the high school appearance, Stewart was entertained at a dinner in the American Legion home given in his honor by the Columbiana Women's Republican club. Mrs. Homer Detwiler and Mrs. Kenneth T. Gormley were in charge of the arrangements.

Other Candidates Present
Appearing on the platform with Stewart were other Republican state candidates, including Hugh S. Jenkins, candidate for attorney general, and Roger W. Tracy, candidate for state auditor.

Jason H. Brookes of East Liverpool, county chairman, headed a group of county leaders, including party candidates, which attended the rally.

The Fairmount Children's Home band gave a half hour concert before the program. Refreshments were served by the Columbiana Women's Republican club members.

Due to the war no collecting has been attempted for over two years. This expedition was made possible by the help of the United States and Bahamas governments, the U. S. Navy and U. S. Coast Guard, Chute said. The crew spent two weeks on Bimini, a small island on the edge of the Gulf stream, collecting these specimens.

Visitors to the aquarium now can see some of the most beautiful fish in the world, including iridescent Angelfish, beautiful but dangerous Triggerfish, Butterflyfish, and delicate Oscar, the Octopus, who is no beauty but is by far the most popular exhibit in the aquarium.

Octopus are very difficult to keep in captivity, usually living only a few weeks, Chute said.

Other queer-looking fish have appropriate names, such as the cockeye pilot, jolt-head porgy, Slippery Dick, razorfish, and yellow grunt. There are also delicate sea anemones, which look like flowers.

Veteran Yank Troops Are Determining Factor In Winning War, Experts Claim

By MICHAEL CHINIGO,
International News Writer

ADVANCED AFHQ Southern France—"Monday morning" military critics, who have long advocated large-scale rotation of fighting men in the Mediterranean arena, now have their answer: veteran divisions mean minimum losses.

That is the lesson of the Riviera landing.

Swivel-chair analysts will, no doubt, attribute the record successes to "this" or "that" inferiority of the Wehrmacht and to Allied air and sea supremacy.

U. S. Infantry Big Factor
Only men who have had a taste of amphibious operations would dare classify such supremacies as "contributing factors."

But that is a fact. The "determining" factor of victory in the Riviera as in Sicily, Salerno and Anzio was the doughboy with the rifle.

And, a comparative study of D-day performance from Sicily to southern France shows the near-miraculous evolution of the American civilian, who ran away in the baptism of fire at Kasserine, to the world's most expert soldier, whose ability to maneuver can make the "traditionally" "perfect" German infantryman look like a novice.

Learned the Hard Way
The Riviera operation had the distinguishing characteristic of three amphibious-veteran American divisions in the "assault."

All had learned the hard way. The Third ("Rock of the Marine") division holds the record for amphibious landing on all war fronts and defensive experience gained in the nip-and-tuck early Anzio fray has made of it the most outstanding battle veteran of the Mediterranean theater.

The Forty-fifth "Thunderbird" division has made rapid strides, since its first landing in Sicily, under the expert command of Maj. Gen. William Eagles of San Antonio, Texas, generally recognized as one of the area's outstanding authorities on infantry tactics. Courage Made It Possible

Particularly instructive is the comparative performance of the rich "Texas" division.

These of us who witnessed the near-disaster at Salerno can vouch for the courage of its components—to a man. It was this courage alone which saved the day then and the lessons learned, and paid for with blood, that made possible a brilliant performance in southern France.

Release of VI Corps as the "assault Corps" makes it possible to get down the success "climber" in the person of Maj. Gen. L. K. Truscott of Charlottesville, Va., its commander—an amphibious veteran since Dieppe.

A green "duck"—that's the popular attribute of an amphibious doughboy—if well-trained, has the million and one answers to as many first-minutes-problems at his fingertips.

Learn by Experience
But ask any of them, as I have, and you get a stock reply:

"You have everything at your finger tips but, until you learn by battle experience, your hands go numb—and often your brain—and that's when you run into trouble."

We who have been covering the frontline soldier for many months share with him the desire to get back home, but acknowledge with them that it may be better to wait.

We agree the home folks should know that veteran divisions mean minimum losses—and a speedier end to the war.

On Road Back

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Col. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine resident commissioner, told the house today he is leaving soon to join Gen. Douglas MacArthur "on what I trust is my way back to the Philippines."

So They Traded

TOLEDO, Ore.—Mrs. Ima Hamer awarded a pinhole prize at a recent lodge party, discovered she had won a jar of shaving cream. Her partner, a man, blushed deeply over a package of baby pins.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Yes, I'm afraid there's no denyin' it, Judge... jeeps and trucks and other kinds of motorized equipment have taken the place of the good old horse in modern warfare."

"It's true of lots of things in this war, Eben. Every day we hear of new tactics and requirements and new uses of products. For instance, take the alcohol that is used for war purposes. In World War 1, this vitally needed product was used mostly in making smokeless powder, chemical warfare materials and medical supplies. Today it must do far more... it must provide the base for such indispensable products as synthetic rubber, shatterproof glass, lacquers, plastics and many other of our requirements so essential to victory.

"As a result hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year... half of which is being produced by the beverage distilling industry. Bet you didn't know that, Eben."

"As a matter of fact, I didn't, Judge. That's a mighty important war contribution that had escaped me completely."

Q—What vital war materials do you get from Brazil?
A—Beryllium ore, used for copper alloys and aircraft engines; guano needed to combat tropical diseases and ailments; and insecticides.

Q—When did the word drug originate?
A—During the Middle Ages; it meant dry herb, dry herbs being used medicinally then.

Q—Are reindeer native to the U. S.?
A—No, the first herds were brought from Siberia to Alaska.

Q—What item, not ordinarily in German diet, are the Nazis eating in an effort to stretch the meager food supplies?
A—Edible mushrooms. A committee in Dresden was established to instruct people how to distinguish between mushrooms and poisonous toadstools.

Q—How large do icebergs get?
A—The largest ever sighted contained some 35,000,000 tons of pure ice. Some are actually higher than the Empire State building.

Three-Fold Program For Health Proposed

(By International News Service)
STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—A three-fold program requiring the collaboration of the home, school and community has been proposed by Dr. Arthur F. Davis, of the Pennsylvania State College, for maintaining military fitness after war has ended.

Davis, associate professor of health and physical education, declared that parents should insure proper rest and food for their children, schools should provide periodic health examinations and communications should offer constructive recreational programs to keep the nation in good health.

"America is prone to take its health for granted," he asserted. "Too many young men just sit and wait for the draft. These youngsters are desperately in need of facilities for improving their mental and physical health."

Davis cited the fact that 25 percent of the men given army physical examinations were found to have defects. He stressed the need of pre-draft age examinations with a view toward correctional measures.

Rationers Buy Stamps

CHASKA, Minn.—If every rationing board in the country did what the Carver county board does, according to chairman Emil O. Teske, servicemen Emil O. Teske, servicemen would have an extra incentive to visit their boards and war bond sales would benefit greatly. Every time a fishing man drops in, even a worker in the board office buys war stamp.

Annual precipitation in the S. ranges from 1 1/2 inches in Del Valley, Calif., to 128 1/2 inches in Quinalt, Wash.

Athletics To Meet Canton Spikers In Sunday Game Here

Gridiron Battle Tomorrow Pitting Pair Of Squads In What Looks Like Even One

PROBABLE STARTING LINEUPS
SALEM	Weights	RAVENNA
LT Brian	164	160
LE Juliano	190	160
LG Appedisan	170	140
C Vavrek	145	153
RT Plegge	141	140
RG Mulford	182	185
RE Rush	160	170
Q Leach	153	150
HH Lanney	161	140
LI Kelly	142	140
F Franks	165	170

Pitting equals against equals in nearly all departments, the Salem Quakers will clash with the highly-touted Ravenna Ravens in Ravenna at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in what looks like a plenty tight gridiron encounter.

Considering all angles, the Quakers and Ravens will come together tomorrow just about equal in weight, lettermen, experience, scoring power and manpower.

Both teams have large squads out this season, both have eight lettermen in the starting berths. Both weigh approximately the same, although Salem has a slight edge. Ravenna has a team average of 155 pounds, while Salem averages around 161. The Raven backfield hit the 150 mark and Salem's one 155. The two lines give Salem more of an edge, Quaker wallmen averaging about 167 and Ravenna 158.

Consequently there isn't going to be a terrific difference in size any place, and both coaches, Ben Barrett of Salem and Harry Gilcrest of Ravenna, have a goodly supply of experienced reserves to call into action.

Differ Offensively

Offensively the two teams do differ and plenty! Salem will be using the same offense displayed here against Sebring last week, with possibly a few more passes sprinkled in here and there. Ravenna will be displaying a deceptive T formation with passes, end runs and off-tackle shoots.

Whether Salem's defense, which looks stronger than the Ravens' from pre-season and first game ratings, can stop the powerful offense and whether the Quaker passes can click will tell the final tale. Ravenna has an edge on the Quakers in that it met a tough, hard-fighting foe in the first game while the Salem outfit had an easy time and is actually untried under severe fire.

Salem Lineup

Barrett expects to start the same lineup he did in the easy Sebring contest. At left end will be Walter Bryan, left tackle, Louis Julian, and left guard, in Appedisan. Center George Vavrek will be starting his second fray for Salem in the Pivot spot and on the right side of the forward wall will be John Plegge at guard, John Mulford at tackle and Tom Bush on end.

In Backfield

Take 33 Players

The all-veteran Raven ball carrying department includes Charles Kieselbach at quarter, Carl Sorbere and Bill Thompson at halfbacks and Paul Shafer at fullback. Faculty Manager Fred Cope said today that Barrett plans to take 33 varsity men on the trip. Al-

SALEM NINE SEEKS FIRST VICTORY IN THIRD ENCOUNTER

Miller, School Coach, Is Included In Lineup To Face Stark Team

Old Man Baseball—nearly forgotten in the midst of flying footballs—will return to Centennial park at 2 p. m. Saturday for a brief workout in preparation for the Canton Spikers in a late season contest.

In previous attempts to defeat the Spikers this year, Salem has run into difficulty both times, going down to defeat once, 8-2, and again 4-3.

All players on the Salem Athletic baseball club are asked to report to Centennial park at 2 p. m. Saturday for a brief workout in preparation for the Canton Spiker game on Sunday.

Manned this week by some new timber—in the person of the High school's new basketball coach, Robert J. Miller—the locals are hoping to post win No. 1 over the Canton outfit.

Miller, who played with the strong Dover-Canal Fulton aggregation in Dover this summer, is reputed to be a high-class infielder. His assignment among the Salemites has not been definitely decided, but the manager is expecting to place him at short or third base.

On the mound for Salem will be Al Lydick, Walt Smith or Red Allison. All three may see action, but the starting job isn't settled yet.

The layoff of a week may have weakened some of the pitching arms, so the nine inning assignment may be divided between the three.

Canton, still going strong on victory lane, is all set to add another impressive win to an already loaded record. Postulating a decisive win over an all-star Alliance team not long ago is just one of many potent wins already claimed by the Undertakers.

Ed Mayo, Cast Off By Giants, Braves And Athletics, Sparking Detroit's Drive To World Series

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

DETROIT—Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouse are outdoing the incredible Deans of 1934. The Tigers awakened with the return of Dick Wakefield. No longer could Rudolph Preston York be passed to get at Jimmy Outlaw, but there are other contributing factors to the surge that promises to carry the Detroit club into the World Series.

Able to grasp the bat properly again, Rudy York assumed his old authority, and when the Tigers returned to Briggs Stadium to remain until the last shot is fired, Doc Cramer had hit safely in 18 consecutive games, is currently batting at a .535 clip.

Southpaw Newhouse finally arrived under Paul Richards' skillful handling, and the Waxahachie Wonder's catching and throwing has played a tremendous part in Detroit's better than .700 pace since Aug. 1.

Mayo Is Forgotten Man
That brings you up to the forgotten man, Edward Joseph Mayo, who is doing to the Tigers what Dick Bartell, another castoff, did for them in 1940.

The Giants paid Baltimore $25,000 for Ed Mayo in 1936, but the following campaign found him with the Braves.

Not even that humble Beantown organization would have anything further to do with him, and the next five years found him with Los Angeles. That happens to be a subsidiary of the Chicago Nationals, but the Cubs would have no truck with a farm hand who had been found wanting by the Giants and Braves. So the Athletics drafted him for 1942.

"With me," says Connie Mack, "Mayo's batting average of .219 was attributed to his sight having been affected by his being struck on the head by the ball on a run down play. But he also lacked speed."

So just before the season closed last fall Manager Mack swapped Mayo to Louisville.

Mayo refused to report to the Nationals. The manpower shortage was acute. Detroit lost infielders and Mayo was the only one who would report.

DON'T GIVE UP ON ST. LOUIS BROWNS! STILL FIGHTING

Capture A Game With Win Over Nats As Yanks Bump Tigers

BY JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't give up on the St. Louis Browns.

Luke Sewell's "hungry" castoffs were only a half game behind the leading Detroit Tigers today on another comeback surge.

Thanks to the Yanks, the Browns had a chance to make a new challenge for their first flag. When the New Yorkers woke up to snap a five-game losing streak by dumping Detroit, 5-4 in a 10-inning series finale yesterday, their motive was strictly selfish. By taking their only game of the set from the Tigers, the defending champs stuck in the race three lengths back with hopes of shortening the gap in Cleveland while the hard-hitting Boston Red Sox visit Detroit.

Browns May Be In There

The Browns figured to be more troublesome now they have shown they can get up off the floor to come back. The inter-club feud between St. Louis and Washington reacted to the Browns' advantage, raising them to a fighting pitch climaxed by the battle between Tom Turner of St. Louis and Roberto Ortiz of Washington before last night's game. Ortiz went to a hospital for hand x-rays but Turner was unhurt and the "insured" Sewellmen slugged out 15 hits for a 9-4 edge.

Frank Crossett's 10th inning double gave Reliever Bill Zuber of the Yanks the nod over Hal Newhouse, doing a turn as a Tiger fireman. Cleveland trimmed Boston, 5-2 despite 11 Sox hits.

St. Louis clinched the National league flag by trimming Boston, 5-4 and 6-5 with both wins going to Reliever Harry Brecheen. Pittsburgh tightened its grip on second place by walloping Brooklyn twice, 10-4 and 14-6. Cincinnati kept pace by downing the Phils, 5-3 and 8-4 and Chicago blasted New York's fourth place aspirations with a double dose of trouble, 11-8 and 6-4.

Salem Idle Tonight But A Full Card Is Offered In District Grid Games

While the Salem Quakers are idle tonight, awaiting their tough job in Ravenna tomorrow, a full district card is booked for most of this section's scholastic grid machines.

At Sebring, where the Trojans are hoping to come back from a stinging defeat here last week, the East Palestine Bulldogs, powerful against their 19-19 tie with Leetonia, will be out for their initial win.

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

by Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

Judith flew west within the next few days. She found Eva thin and pale but, according to the doctor whom she secretly interviewed, organically sound. He said gravely, "I think it has been hard for her to adjust herself. And she misses you very much, Mrs. Norman."

Before Judith returned, she had a long talk with her mother. She said, "Do give it up, darling, and come back east and live with us. I'd love it."

Eva shook her head. "No... it's out of the question. I couldn't change my plans now, there's Marion to consider."

"But why won't you? We have plenty of room and then there's the new house, you'd love it; you could be there all summer, every summer."

"My dear," her mother said and smiled faintly, "much as I'd like to be with you, it's against my principles. Young people should be alone. And Matthew wouldn't like it at all."

"Did Matthew ever say—?"

Her mother cut in hastily. "Not exactly. But once before Ella died, he did mention something."

To dismiss the unpleasant detail, Judith declared, "Then we'll compromise, shall we? If you don't want to face an eastern winter, how about coming east in the spring, you and Cousin Marion, and taking an apartment or a hotel suite? Then we could see each other every day. I do miss you so!"

Eva's eyes were bright with tears. She said, "Well, perhaps that would work out. It was good of you to come. You're sure Cousin Marion hasn't been worrying you?"

"Of course not. I wanted to be with you on your birthday."

"Anyway, you can see I'm all right," her mother told her. "I suppose I was overdone. I think we'll go to Honolulu. And perhaps when we return... it's a temptation," she confessed. "I love the spring in New York."

Judith flew back after ten days. Watching the checkered landscape beneath her, her mind preoccupied with her own situation. It wasn't dramatic, it wasn't at all the sort of quarrel or difference of opinion or misunderstanding that made headlines, that would seem important to other people. How could she explain it to anyone? Everything on which they could not agree would seem so trivial to most people. Her mother, for instance; this trip; his attitude toward his own mother; his attitude toward Elizabeth and Peter. Ah, a hundred little things. You couldn't add them up, could you, and make a sensational sum?

She thought: The whole thing is just that we are lovers and we aren't friends.

Mary was at the airport to meet her. Matthew, she explained, was busy at the hospital, she was his welcome by proxy. As they drove to the apartment, Mary asked:

"How is Eva? Your letter didn't say much."

"I think she's all right. The doctor said that she simply wasn't strong, though organically sound. It seems to be loneliness," explained Judith. "despite Cousin Marion I tried to persuade her to come live with us, but she wouldn't hear of it, though she and Cousin Marion may come east in the spring."

"Matthew had a wonderful time in Boston," said his mother, "and his paper went over very well. I was proud of him."

"You went?"

"Didn't he tell you?" asked Mary, amazed. "I intended to write but things caught up with me. She paused and added, "While I was away, Lynn's wife had a heart attack. She died, Judith."

After a brief, solemn silence, Mary said, "I came back, although Matthew was a little annoyed, he thought it well, I don't know... unnecessary? unconventional? but Lynn took it very much to heart. I'm sure that he kept thinking of her as she had been when they were first married and happy. He was with her when she died. And just before, she knew him. She didn't know Rita. But then she had never known Rita," remarked Mary gravely, "never known that she ever had a child, not since her illness."

Judith asked, "I wonder why Matthew...?" She shrugged and added, "I've talked to him, he called me from Boston and I called him in New York. I had one letter and several wires."

His mother laughed. "Perhaps he didn't want to admit to you that he had to have an admiring and personal audience in order to feel that his paper was really good. He couldn't have you, so he took second best. Tell me more about your trip."

Matthew came barging in after Judith had been at home for an hour or so. He seized and hugged her until she cried for mercy. He inquired at once, "How much did you miss me?"

"Too much. Why didn't you tell me Mary went to Boston with you?"

"Never thought about it," replied Matthew honestly. "but I was glad she was there. She made a great hit, by the way, had half a dozen of the old boys hanging on her lightest words. Did she meet you? Good. And tell you about Lynn? Poor fellow—I'm glad it's over for them both. How did you leave your mother?"

Judith disengaged herself. She said, "How much time have you?"

He looked at his watch. "Got to be back at the office in half an hour. What's on your mind? There shouldn't be anything. But no, but you're wearing your school-teacher expression again."

"I asked mother to come east and live with us," said Judith.

Her husband's eyebrows went up. Well, and what happened?

"She wouldn't, of course. Matthew, did you ever say anything to her about in-laws in the house? I mean before Aunt Ella died?"

"If I did, I don't remember. Why?"

Matthew didn't lie, Judith knew. But she thought: Yes, he did say something, threw out a feeler perhaps when it became apparent to him, if not to us, that Aunt Ella wasn't going to live very long. Just a warning. Mother's utterly unsuspecting by nature. It wouldn't occur to her that he had a purpose, a motive.

"Matthew..."

"Well?"

"You did say something to Mother. She didn't suspect your motive. Her main reason for not living with us was that you would not like it. When I pinned her down, she said you had once expressed yourself on the subject before Aunt Ella died."

"Are you trying to pick a fight with me on the very day you come home? I told you I don't remember saying anything of the kind and that's true enough. But if I did I'll stand by it. I don't believe in a third person in a man's house. I wouldn't want even my own mother. It's all right to visit but—"

"Very well, we'll forget it. As for your own mother, I'll bet you anything that she and Lynn will be married by the end of another year. If they insist on waiting that long... which would be crazy."

"You made me wait," he said instantly, before the complete meaning of her remark came to him. "That was different. Matthew, why are you looking at me like that?"

Her husband evaded a direct reply by remarking, "Women have funny minds. Just because Lynn's wife dies... Good Lord, do you realize how old they are?"

"You feel that way only because she's your mother," declared Judith steadily, "and you begrudge her a life outside of yourself."

"That's not so." Then he said slowly, "I don't begrudge her a life outside of me... and her normal interests, but why at her age? It's absurd!"

Judith asserted wearily, "How old is she—a little over fifty?" She has twenty, maybe twenty-five years ahead of her. Do you have to be young to be happy," she demanded, "because if you do, what's ahead of us, Matthew?"

"Now what does that mean?" he asked, glad to be distracted from unpleasant thoughts. "You have a mind like a grasshopper."

Judith said, "As you grow older I suppose you gradually lose something which keeps you together when you're young. And so there has to be something to take its place. Not better perhaps but as good. Children, and a community

Walks Under Ladder—

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—When mail superintendent Matthew Guitman reported for work at the postoffice late for the first time in 25 years he had a good excuse. He had walked under a painter's ladder at the same time the painter's elbow upset a can of canary yellow paint.

A rubber belt with steel-cable carcass which can be loaded to roughly seven times the tension of the heaviest belt ever made before will soon be playing a vital role in assuring the safety of America's big new bombers. Weighing a total of 2730 pounds, the belt is intended for testing airplane tires and brakes.
